

HELLO
November

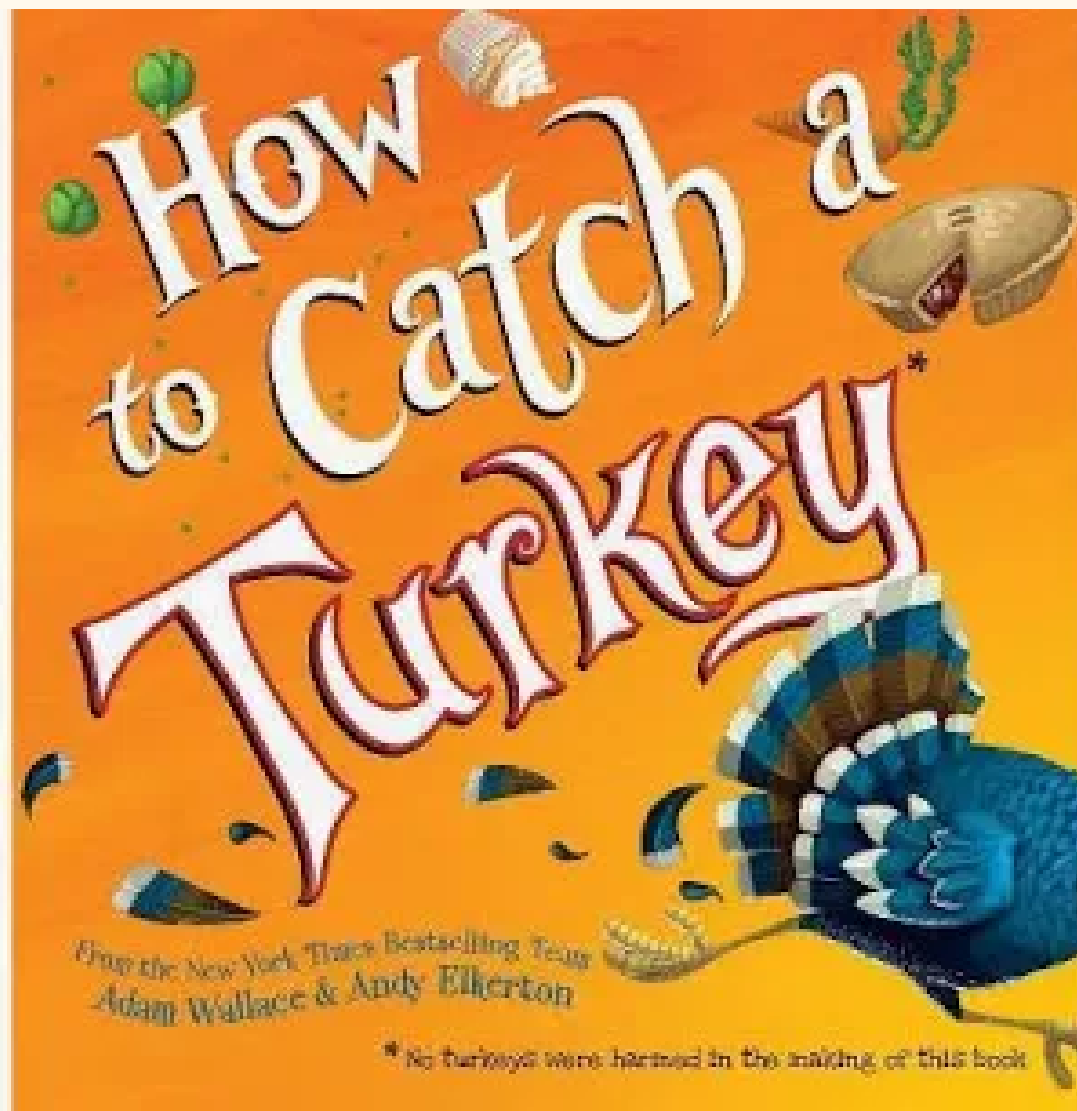

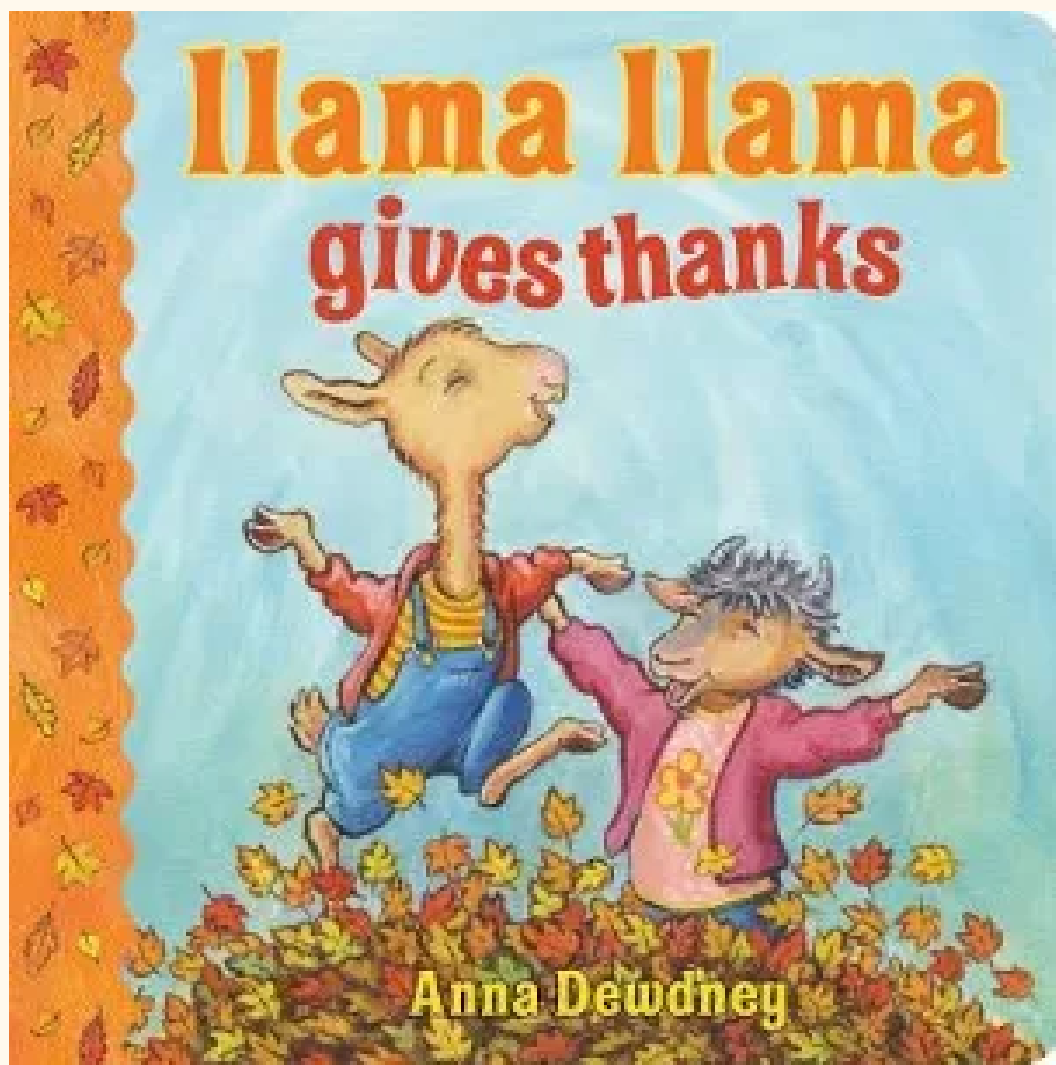

This is a great Thanksgiving book to focus on being thankful for friends and family. It's also a perfect starting point to discuss with your child what they are thankful for as we enter the holiday season! They can draw, write or tell what they are thankful for. What we also love in this book:

1. Rhythm and rhyme: great for pre-reading skills
2. predicable plot: your child can work on guessing what will happen next (ex. "Bear says thanks").
3. It's part of a series which children this age love! Familiar characters make this book extra fun. See also "Bear Snores On" and 8 other books.

This is another fun Thanksgiving book part of a series of "How to Catch a" books. It's silly storyline is different from other Thanksgiving books and will have your little one laughing at the end! What we like about this skill-wise:

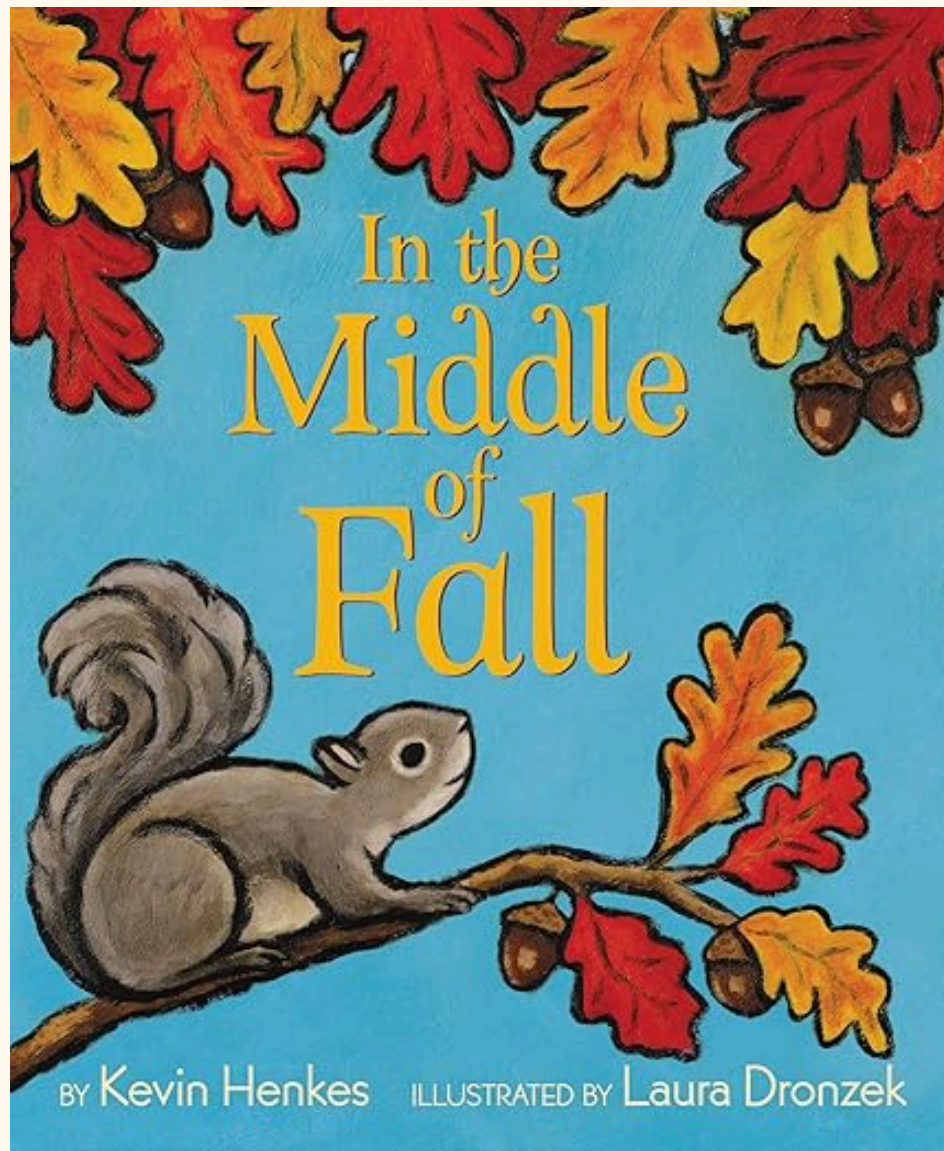

1. The rhyme is great for phonological awareness
2. It's great for practicing sequencing of events
3. Easy extension- how would you try to catch him?

This Thanksgiving book is short and sweet! It's a great introduction to talking about Thanksgiving with your little learner.

We love this as part of yet another well loved series- "Llama Llama". It pairs well with a "thankful" craft or writing activity.

It has great rhyming words as well so your little can practice guessing what the next word would be or identifying the rhyming words.

This is a perfect science connection for discussing the changes that happen in the fall. It focuses on the middle of fall when it starts to get cold and crisp in the air. The text is short, simple and descriptive. A fun extension would be going outside to see if you can see any signs of fall. If you live somewhere that does not change for the fall season, look at some pictures or watch videos of places like New England that are famous for their changing leaves.
